

AFFAIRS IN BROOKLYN.

WHAT WILL MAYOR BOODY DO?

THE GOVERNOR'S VETO HAS PUT HIM IN AN UNCOMFORTABLE POSITION.

Mayor Boody may find that the easiest way out of the position in which he finds himself by the Governor's veto of the bill to legalize the expenditures for the Columbus celebration and the Memorial Arch dedication, which the Governor characterized as illegal and extravagant, will be to turn over to the city the amount expended and thus save the expense of suits to secure its repayment. The Mayor would not feel the sum, $50,000, as he is a millionaire. Whether Mayor Boody will make a public statement is uncertain. He admitted yesterday that he was considering the propriety of doing so. He held a conference in the afternoon with Hugh McLaughlin, Senator McCarthy and Corporation Counsel Jenks. It is probable that new measures designed to offset the Governor's objection to the one vetoed may be submitted to the Legislature legalizing the acts of the city and county officials.

The subject has caused as great discussion in its new phase as the original indictment of thirty-four city and county officials. The Rev. Dr. R. R. Merdith said yesterday:

"Brooklyn is probably the worst governed city in the world. The men who control its affairs are not business men, but men whose sole occupation is politics and who get rich without doing it. It is a burning shame that the people of Brooklyn will allow themselves to be governed by the rotten, miserable 'ring' now in power. The election and administration of both Low made it necessary to put men of decent moral character and reputation in the Mayor's chair, but Mr. Chapin was ruined by the 'ring' and Mr. Boody bids fair to be. He seems to have saved his integrity at the expense of his intelligence. Governor Wood has put the city in a position where it is managed the matter, and denounces his methods. A man who lets municipal accounts go unsupervised the way he does has no business energy or gumption about him. The Mayor has fallen into the hands of the 'ring' and sacrificed his knowledge of financial affairs for his honor. He has kept ignorant so as not to be dishonest. Municipal elections should be divorced from state and National politics, and the city's affairs should be managed strictly on business principles."

THEIR GUEST HAD THEM ARRESTED.

MR. WAINWRIGHT ACCUSED THEM OF TAKING HIS MONEY.

James Campbell, proprietor of the Hotel Chate, at South First-st. and Bedford-ave., with William Coffey and James Nelson went to the law office of Miles, Stapleton & McMahon yesterday to begin an action against ex-Assemblyman William Wainwright to recover damages for false arrest.

On Monday night the ex-Assemblyman, who is proprietor of the Hotel Chate, at Bedford-ave., visited the Eastern District of Brooklyn. Among the places he went to was the barroom of John McKee, Grand-st. and Bedford-ave. While drinking there he suddenly was seized with a desire to go to the island to see the prize fight. "Get me a coach," he said to the proprietor. One of the party told Mr. Wainwright that if he would give a sportsman's party he could find one at the hotel of Mr. Campbell. He went to the hotel just as Mr. Campbell and his friends were about to start for Coney Island. He was invited to accompany them and did so. Before the island had been reached Mr. Wainwright declared that he had been robbed of his purse containing a large sum of money. When they arrived at the island Wainwright called a policeman and had the three men arrested. Chief of Police John J. McKee was sent for and in his presence the three men were searched. Nothing but their own things was found upon them.

One of the men asked that Mr. Wainwright be searched. The money was found in his inside vest pocket. Mr. Wainwright was unable to express his regret for his unjust suspicions.

"We won't accept your apology," Mr. Campbell said indignantly. "You have treated us shamefully and you will hear from us again."

Mr. Wainwright did not return to Brooklyn in Mr. Campbell's coach.

HE MAY DIE FROM A BLOW WITH A CHISEL.

Patrick Meehan, No. 290 Delancey-st., New York, is in a critical condition in the Eastern District Hospital, suffering from a fractured skull, and several wounds over the right temple. James Cox, who is responsible for his condition, is still at liberty. Both men are charged as clippers in the iron foundry of R. Hoe & Co., at South Ninth-st. and the East River. While at work clipping a casting yesterday morning an argument arose as to which of the two owned the best wire brush used in polishing the castings. In the argument Cox threw a chisel at Meehan, which struck him in the right temple, inflicting a bad wound. He fell backward, unconscious, his head striking against a casting and fracturing his skull. As soon as Cox saw Meehan unconscious, with blood flowing from the wound on the side of his head, he ran from the place. A number of workmen started in pursuit. After chasing Cox several blocks he managed to escape.

MR. ENNIS IS ENTIRELY SATISFIED.

The commission appointed by Mayor Boody to investigate the charges against the Fire Department by the New York Insurance Tariff Association began its work yesterday afternoon in Mayor Boody's office. The commissioners are Alexander E. Orr, Edward E. Bartlett, and John G. Jenkins. Mr. Orr presided. Fire Commissioner Ennis was the only witness questioned yesterday. Mr. Ennis denied that the firemen "loafed" in addition to the time they were allowed for their meals. They never frequented groggshops. There was only one grogshop in the city that had a fire-alarm gong, and to that he had given special permission to have it. The newspaper offices and insurance offices in the city were not allowed to have a fire-alarm gong. There had been no complaint of lack of discipline in engine-houses. No engine ever went to a fire with an inadequate supply of coal and without axes for the men. Each engine had an hour's supply of coal. A supply wagon was also sent with the soft coal used in the engines. It was not true that the men ever had to borrow coal and axes. In regard to the efficiency of the department, Mr. Ennis said that in the department in eight years of its incumbency was as efficient as in any city of the size of Brooklyn. He was satisfied absolutely with the discipline and efficiency of the department.

Chief Nevins will be examined at the session of the commission to-day at 4 p. m.

HE WAS A QUEER KIND OF ROBBIER.

Mrs. Annie Nixon, who lives with her husband on the first floor of the double flat at No. 480 Twelfth-st., told a strange story of robbery yesterday. She is a Swede, and was married eight months ago to John Nixon, a house painter. Her husband went to his work yesterday morning and about 9 a. m. a strange man, about thirty years old, tall and light haired, with a mustache, called at the house and asked for her husband. Learning that he was not at home the stranger pushed past Mrs. Nixon into the house and made his way to a bedroom in the rear. Mrs. Nixon followed him and the man threw her down and covered her head with a blanket. While the stranger was searching the room she managed to free herself and he then threw her down again and choked her until she was insensible. She lay there until her husband came home and found her. Together they searched the rooms and found that $3 had been stolen from a bureau drawer. There was another dollar and a gold watch in the room. The woman said she thought the man was drunk and he would have taken all the money and the ring. She thought he was a Swede. Efforts to confirm the statements of the woman were fruitless.

AN ARCHITECT ACCUSED OF ARSON.

Christian Allen, an architect living at No. 201 Keap-st., was a prisoner in the New Avenue Police Court yesterday charged with attempted arson. Allen occupies three rooms at the Keap-st. address, and at 6 o'clock on Tuesday night he was discovered in the place. It was detected by Mrs. M. Goldebe, the lessee of the house, who broke open the door leading to the rooms. The stove was more than filled with wood and a roll of matting with kerosene, it is alleged, upon it. This, too, was on fire. The flames were put out and Allen was arrested on his return to the house. He denied the charge and was released by Paul Becker, his counsel's wife, who is a dressmaker living in the Keap-st. Allen declared that he didn't have a penny of insurance on his personal property. The examination was adjourned.

WORKING FOR THE GREATER NEW-YORK.

The Consolidation League, to further the scheme for making New-York and Brooklyn one, was formally organized at No. 44 Court-st., Brooklyn, last evening. The organization is an outgrowth of the meeting held a month ago in the Real Estate Exchange. A committee of one hundred, including many prominent business men of the city, was named. A constitution, pledging the members to work and vote for consolidation was adopted. The officers elected were James Matthews, president; Joseph Partridge, Henry Batterman, M. S. Driggs, John Gibbs and A. D. Blair, vice-presidents; Sanders Shanks, secretary; James Mc-

Mahon, treasurer. Speeches were made by Thomas C. Smith, N. T. Sprague and E. C. Graves in favor of the bill now before the Legislature. A committee was appointed to go to Albany.

CONVICTED OF MURDER IN THE FIRST DEGREE.

Edward Geoghan, a truck driver twenty-eight years old, was convicted of murder in the first degree in the Court of Oyer and Terminer yesterday. He shot and killed his wife, Mrs. Ellen Geoghan, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Catharine Brennan, at No. 103 Wyckoff-st., on September 8. The couple had been married a year and a half, but owing to the jealous nature of the husband and his threats to kill her in the quarrels which arose, Mrs. Geoghan had left him and gone to her sister's home. On the day of the crime he called to see her and as soon as he saw her he called her sister's home. On the day of the crime he called to see her and as soon as he saw her he called her sister's home. On the day of the crime he called to see her and as soon as he saw her he called her sister's home.

ARRESTED FOR TAKING AWAY HIS GIFT.

Philip Fesser, of No. 78 Varet-st., yesterday charged Morris Kressler, of No. 50 Graham-ave., with grand larceny in Justice Watson's Court. Kressler had stolen a gold watch valued at $65. He was held for trial. Later he said he was engaged to Lillian, a daughter of Fesser, and that he had given to her a watch some time ago. The young woman had had the watch only a few days when he learned that it was not worth the money he had paid for it, and he took it from her in order to get a better one. Her father learned this and had him arrested.

GATHERED ABOUT THE TOWN.

Allan Cunningham, a former member of the 22d Regiment, and a student in the Columbian School of Mines, who had been in the Anitville insane asylum a week, was set free on habeas corpus proceedings by Judge Dykman yesterday after hearing evidence as to his sanity from the young man and his friends.

Herbert K. Jones, who boarded at No. 54 W. 10th-st., disappeared just before the fire at the sea View Hotel at Fort Hamilton, on January 24. He was a book canvasser, and had told a party of friends, with whom he went to the theatre, that he was going to Fort Hamilton to canvass the village. No one was reported missing after the fire, but it is thought to be possible that he spent the night there and was lost. His parents live at Somerville, Mass.

JERSEY CITY.

Owing to Mayor Warner's careful administration of the affairs of Jersey City the Board of Finance was able yesterday to resolve a resolution to issue $175,000 5 per cent bonds and fix the interest on the proposed loan at 4 1/2 per cent. They find that the bonds will sell just as readily, but it required a good deal of argument on Mayor Warner's part to take them up. The resolution was passed by a vote of 10 to 2. The amount is $175,000. Collins & Corbin, counsel for John Nohr, protested that Mr. Nohr's claim for $100,000 was not valid. He thought that Nohr was the more responsible bidder and held that they were acting for the city's interest, as the law required them to do.

Albert McDonald, a carpenter, of No. 50 Ogden-ave., while working at the top of the elevator of the South Jersey Bank's establishment in Ninth-st., fell to the bottom of the shaft. The board of directors of the bank, which was closed for business yesterday, said that the accident was caused by the fact that McDonald was not properly secured.

The burlesque spectacle "The Burlesque Spectacle" will be presented by the Juvenile Amateur Association at Broadway Hall, No. 230 Fulton-st., this evening.

Interesting religious services are being conducted every evening this week and will be held next week at the Friends' Church, Lafayette and Washington aves., by Elwood Scott, an evangelist, from Indiana.

Jacob Turk, seventy years old, committed suicide yesterday afternoon in a furnished room at No. 11 Meeker-ave., by shooting himself in the mouth. At one time the suicide was worth considerable money. He was the owner of the tenement-house No. 14 Jackson-st. He married a second wife, who left him a few years after her marriage. He left her a week ago. No cause but despondency is given for his act.

HOME NEWS.

WHAT IS GOING ON TO-DAY.

Union League Club meeting, evening.
Homeopathic Medical Society, Berkeley Lyceum, 8 p. m.
Hayes case before Judge Martine.
Aldine Club reception to Authors' Club, evening.
Chi Chi Entertainment, Hotel de Lorraine, evening.
Annual meeting of the New York City Club, 8 p. m.
Berkeley Ladies' Athletic Club reception, Gymnasium, 8 p. m.
Industrial School of Pilgrim Cong. Christian Church annual meeting, 8 p. m.
Florence Dramatic Society reception, Avon Hall, Brooklyn, 8 p. m.
Twilight Club dinner, St. Denis Hotel, evening.
Columbia College Dramatic Club theatricals, Manhattan Athletic Club, 8 p. m.
Xavier Ethical Society, No. 39 West Eleventh-st., 8 p. m.
Department of Church Music services, St. Agnes' Chapel, 8 p. m.
American Council, Royal Arcanum, reception, Central Ten Year Hall, evening.
Working Girls' Choral Union, Cooper Union, 8 p. m.
Annual meeting of New York Baseball Club, Jersey City.
Prison Association annual meeting, No. 195 East Fifth-st., 8 p. m.
Ordination of J. W. Herman, Grace Church, 11 a. m.
New York Library Club, Association Hall, 8 p. m.

NEW-YORK CITY.

The candidates for the Columbia College inter-collegiate athletic team will begin training in the Columbia Grammar School Gymnasium on Monday afternoon.

Professor A. C. McGiffert, of Lane Theological Seminary, has been unable to begin his lectures in Union Theological Seminary owing to the death of a near relative. It is hoped that he will be able to give his historical lectures in a week or two.

The Twenty-third-st. branch of the Y. M. C. A. will have a bowling match with the Harlem branch in the Harlem Gymnasium on Saturday night.

The Grand Jury yesterday dismissed the complaint against Carl Trede, a German, and George Knobloch and Roger B. Whitman, the boys who painted the statue of Schiller in Central Park green.

Ex-Mayor Grant has purchased the Scotch Presbyterian Church property in East Fourteenth-st. The price is said to be $150,000. Nathan Strauss is interested with Mr. Grant in the purchase.

Mails from China and Japan of the following dates: Shanghai, December 30; Hong Kong, December 31, and Yokohama, January 10, are due to arrive in New York Sunday next. The next mail for China and Japan will close at the Post Office at 6:50 p. m. on Friday, February 17.

The steamships Paris and New York, of the American Line, formerly the Iman Line, which used to be known as the City of Paris and the City of New York, will, on February 23, hold the American flag.

The Christian Reformed Dutch Church, formerly called the True Reformed Dutch Church, at Perry and West Fourth-sts., has been sold. The price paid for it was $40,000. It will be torn down and the lot will be used for a business building.

The corner at Spruce and Nassau-sts. has always been considered one of New-York's coldest spots. Workmen were making an excavation near the Franklin statue yesterday. One of them said that the ground at one point was frozen four feet below the surface.

The meeting of the Medical-Legal Society set down for last evening went over until March 7 on account of the lack of a quorum. At the March meeting Dr. James T. Sexton, of the State Hospital for the Insane, at Jacona, Ala., will read a paper on "The Moral Sense in Criminal Responsibility."

Theodore A. Haveney has not purchased the Andrew Duff Farm at Wheatley, L. I., as was reported yesterday, but the property has been bought by Ezeron L. Whitworth, Jr. He says that he has no intention of building on the property, which includes 200 acres adjoining the property of E. D. Morgan.

Announcements.

Broadway Crawford Shoe Stores, 177—above—Cathedral—City Hall—837—Corner 15th-st.—1,155—Below 27th-st.

HENRY A. DANIELS, M. D., 30 WEST 34TH-ST., Diseases of the Nervous System, Urinary Organs, Impotency and Sterility. Hours, 9 to 1, & 6 to 8.

PHILLIPS' DIGESTIBLE COCOA, Unlike other cocoa or chocolate, is so prepared that it will not disturb digestion. Delicious flavor.

No house is complete without PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, needed for every weakness. PARKER'S HAIR TONIC is 10 to 100.

E. & W.—The Tyroga link cuff should be worn with our Tyroga or Nodda collar. E. & W.

HILTON, HUGHES & CO.,

Successors to A. T. Stewart & Co.

Bargains in SMYRNA RUGS.

IMMENSE ASSORTMENT

18 by 36 inch, - $1.00
26 by 54 " - 2.00
30 by 60 " - 2.50
36 by 72 " - 3.50

AND

Exquisite VELVET CARPETS,

$1.00 per yard.

(Elevator, Second Floor.)

Broadway, 4th Avenue, 9th & 10th Sts.

AVOID THE KNIFE.

SAFE AND SURE CURE FOR PILES, FISTULA, ITCHING, FISSURE, &c. NO DETENTION FROM BUSINESS. THE ONLY PAINLESS METHOD. DR. A. B. JAMISON, 41 West 26th St., N. Y. City.

NEWS FROM NEW-JERSEY.

JERSEY CITY.

Owing to Mayor Warner's careful administration of the affairs of Jersey City the Board of Finance was able yesterday to resolve a resolution to issue $175,000 5 per cent bonds and fix the interest on the proposed loan at 4 1/2 per cent. They find that the bonds will sell just as readily, but it required a good deal of argument on Mayor Warner's part to take them up. The resolution was passed by a vote of 10 to 2. The amount is $175,000. Collins & Corbin, counsel for John Nohr, protested that Mr. Nohr's claim for $100,000 was not valid. He thought that Nohr was the more responsible bidder and held that they were acting for the city's interest, as the law required them to do.

Albert McDonald, a carpenter, of No. 50 Ogden-ave., while working at the top of the elevator of the South Jersey Bank's establishment in Ninth-st., fell to the bottom of the shaft. The board of directors of the bank, which was closed for business yesterday, said that the accident was caused by the fact that McDonald was not properly secured.

The burlesque spectacle "The Burlesque Spectacle" will be presented by the Juvenile Amateur Association at Broadway Hall, No. 230 Fulton-st., this evening.

Interesting religious services are being conducted every evening this week and will be held next week at the Friends' Church, Lafayette and Washington aves., by Elwood Scott, an evangelist, from Indiana.

Jacob Turk, seventy years old, committed suicide yesterday afternoon in a furnished room at No. 11 Meeker-ave., by shooting himself in the mouth. At one time the suicide was worth considerable money. He was the owner of the tenement-house No. 14 Jackson-st. He married a second wife, who left him a few years after her marriage. He left her a week ago. No cause but despondency is given for his act.

HOBOKEN.

The Homebased Bank of Hoboken failed seventeen years ago. John Sanford was appointed receiver. He could find few assets, and those of questionable character, and the depositors grew clamorous. In 1881 Mr. Sanford made an attempt to liquidate the bank, but it failed. He was then elected receiver, but he failed to find the assets. He was then elected receiver, but he failed to find the assets. He was then elected receiver, but he failed to find the assets.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.

Elizabeth Smith, a trainman in the employ of the Central Railroad, once actually conducted his own case yesterday in the Court of Common Pleas against Frederick Smith, who had him indicted by the grand jury for assault and battery. The complainant was Michael Connelly, a special policeman, also in the employ of the Central Company. Connelly found some customer taking coal on the tracks and drove them away. Smith intervened and quarrelled with Connelly. Smith was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery. He was then indicted for assault and battery.